Course Description:

This course intends to guiding students in the discovery and understanding of social and cultural aspects of contemporary Italy. By the end of the semester, students should have a good understanding of how people in different cultures and social groups define and explain facts and phenomena relating to social and cultural life, political and religious domains, communication and psychology, illness, health and the body, and how particular aspects and problems in these fields fit into broader ecological, biological, social, political, and economic contexts. By means of examination of sources and data, case studies, interviews and site visits students will learn about the main factors that identify and define contemporary Italian life

Course descriptions may be subject to occasional minor modifications at the discretion of the instructor.

Textbooks: TBA

During orientation at the Institute, students will receive a list of textbooks they are required to purchase. Students should not purchase any texts before orientation.
